

D.1 Smilies

Puzzle by: Andrew Shellshear
Difficulty: Medium

cisra Puzzle Competition 2008
<http://puzzle.cisra.com.au>

You've been on this case for a while now, and you feel you're closing in. Tonight, you followed one of the suspects from a bar where he talked briefly with a man you hadn't seen before. Then you tailed him to his apartment. You considered knocking on the door and confronting him... but that could be dangerous. Besides, there's another clue you want to study first.

The man had dropped his keys when he pulled them out of his pocket. As he bent over to pick them up, a card fell out of his pocket. A card you're now studying carefully under your magnifying glass back in your headquarters.

It looks like a greeting card, except that it's blank on the inside and back, and the front isn't a design you've ever seen at any newsagent. But you're sure it means something, and you're determined to make sense of it.

